Miller Stable To Be Busy With Top Trotters This Weekend

The only good news about the snowstorm that hit New Jersey on Wednesday afternoon was that it hit Wednesday, not Friday or Saturday, when it could cause the cancellation of racing, as was the case the prior weekend.

On Wednesday afternoon, trainer Julie Miller was trying to keep up with falling snow when there was four inches on the ground, with another six inches forecast.

“When you have a couple of 70-degree days, you think there’s smooth sailing ahead, but I guess that’s not true!” said Miller, who operates her stable with her husband, Andy.

Miller, however, was thrilled that the snowstorm arrived well before the weekend. She has two horses entered at the Meadowlands Friday night, one for Saturday, plus horses entered at Freehold and Yonkers.

On Friday night, Miller will send out the veteran trotter Opulent Yankee in Race 2 at the Meadowlands, the $20,000 Preferred Handicap Trot. Opulent Yankee, now 7 years old, has two wins and a second in three starts this season, but hasn’t raced since Feb. 2.

“At first he missed a week because they couldn’t fill (the race), then last week they cancelled. We just want to get raced!” said Miller. “But he should be fine.”

Opulent Yankee is owned by Meadowlands’ chairman Jeff Gural (Little E LLC) and his friends Dave Stolz and Arthur Geiger. While Opulent Yankee will be helping fill the card at the Meadowlands, Miller has another trotter in her stable who is more suited to Yonkers: Money Maven.

The Millers are racing another notable trotter this winter, Dog Gone Lucky.

Now 9 years old, Money Maven has a win and a second in five starts this season. He’ll start from post 5 in the $40,000 Open Handicap Trot (Race 9) at Yonkers Saturday night.

Unraced as a 2 year old, Money Maven is by the Swedish-bred Revenue, who proved he had both speed and durability. Money Maven spent his first few years of racing on the Woodbine/Mohawk circuit and his 2017 campaign boosted his career earnings to $572,907 in 190 starts. Last year, all of his 31 starts for money were at Yonkers and he raked in $170,810 in purses.

“He’s been in my barn for close to four years now, and he seems very comfortable at Yonkers, so we’ll keep him there,” said Miller of Money Maven, who is owned by Kapildeo Singh, also a co-owner of 2017 Older Male Pacer of the Year Keystone Velocity. “Last year he was like an ATM.”

The Millers are racing another notable trotter this winter, Dog Gone Lucky. Although a dead-heat winner of the 2015 Valley Victory Trot at age two, Dog Gone Lucky struggled as a 3 year old. Last year at age four he won in 1:54.1 and finished first-second-third in seven of 16 starts, but only earned $39,045. This year he already has $42,250 in earnings on his card thanks to a win and three seconds at Yonkers.

The Millers started training Dog Gone Lucky last fall, taking over from Michele Heijnen and Marta De Brujin, who also own the now 5-year-old gelding. According to Miller, Heijnen and De Brujin go to Florida in the winter and work with young horses. They had previously been part of the horse’s ownership group when he was trained by Hall of Famer Chuck Sylvester.

Julie said Dog Gone Lucky’s success at Yonkers has been a pleasant surprise.

“The one thing we were mostly concerned about is we were told he was a picky eater, but he’s been eating,” said Julie. “Otherwise, I would say we just tried to get back to basics with him. One thing we did change is his shoes. Now he’s wearing aluminums behind.” — By Kathy Parker

Marcus Melander Talks About His Stable, 2018

In only his third full season as a trainer, Marcus Melander enjoyed a memorable year that culminated with Fourth Dimension being named the Dan Patch Award winner for best 2-year-old male trotter.

Melander, who turned 26 in January, came to the U.S. from Sweden less than five years ago and worked for trainer Jimmy Takter before starting his own stable in late 2014. He is based in New Egypt, N.J., at a farm that was home previously to each the legendary Stanley Dancer and Continental Farms stables.

Last year, Melander’s horses won 38 races and $1.31 million in purses, nearly tripling his earnings from the previous season. His victories in 2017 included the Valley Victory Stakes with Fourth Dimension, a division of the Stanley Dancer Memorial with Long Tom, and an elimination of the Hambletonian Stakes with Enterprise, who later was fourth-placed-third in the final.

Melander’s stable this year numbers 40 horses, with the majority being 2-year-olds. He recently took time to talk with Ken Weingartner, the U.S. Trotting Association’s media relations manager.

KW: First of all, congratulations on Fourth Dimension receiving the Dan Patch Award. What does that mean to you, especially at such a young age?

MM: That meant a lot. There are so many good horses and so many good trainers. To have the best one, it means a lot, especially in my third year as a trainer. Like you said, I’m young, and it’s not easy to get those awards. I’m very happy with it.

KW: What’s it been like getting settled here in the States and how have you seen your stable change?

MM: The first year when I was here, we only had about six babies (2 year olds). We had a couple that were OK. But after that, I got a horse (Clifton Beach) from (owner) Courant. He was a 3-year-old gelding that made breaks, but I did good with him. After that, I got some more horses from them and we did well. That’s when I started to pick owners up. You need to have good owners to have good horses. I’m very thankful to all my owners.

KW: What have you learned over the first couple years?

MM: First of all, I learned a lot when I worked for Jimmy Takter my first year here. Then I went on my own. You’ve got to put horses in the right condition, you have to figure out travel, there is always stuff you look at and maybe change. Last year with Enterprise for the Goodtimes we went back and forth (to Canada) and he was no good in the final because he had a problem with ulcers. Maybe we should have stayed up there. You’re always learning things. I’m only 26. I’ve got a lot to learn still. But I’m feeling more comfortable every season.

KW: Have you done anything different training wise? Changed your approach?

MM: Maybe a little bit. Last year we had a really good year with both the 2- and 3-year-olds. But you always look to improve things. You think about things as you’re out there driving.

KW: With the experience you gained last year does that help you going forward?

MM: Oh yeah absolutely. With Long Tom and Enterprise, they started early very good and I think maybe I topped them a little too early. They raced great until the (Hambletonian) and after that they flattened out a little bit and we had some bad racing luck. That’s stuff you learn too. Maybe we won’t qualify as early. But it was a little different because Enterprise only made one start as a 2-year-old so you had to be going a little earlier.

KW: How are your 2-year-olds coming along?

MM: They’re good. I’m very happy with all of them. It’s a good group. I can’t pick anyone out right now, but I’m looking forward to seeing them race.

KW: Are they all trotters?

MM: I’ve got three pacers. I’ve got 25 trotters and three pacers. It’s fun. They’re really nice. I’ve got one Captain-treacherous colt (Sundown Showdown) and one Sweet Lou filly (Sweet Body) and a Roll With Joe colt (Quick-callblue Chip). They pace very good. I’m happy with them. We’ll see how they do.

KW: Do you see much difference with the pacers?

MM: No, like I said, I learned a lot the first year I was here working with Jimmy. We had a lot of pacers there. You maybe do some things differently, but it’s not much different.

KW: Has it been an adjustment living in the States?

MM: I’ve loved it here from the day I got here. This will be my fifth year here. I’m happy. My whole family is here and there are a lot of Swedes around, friends and stuff, so it’s good.

KW: What do you most like about living here?

MM: I like the racing here. In Sweden it’s very good too, but it’s a little bit different here. I just like it here.

KW: What do you most enjoy about working with the horses?

MM: We have really good horses this year. I’m looking forward to the season. Hopefully we can have a great year again. Hopefully everything goes well and we have a good year.

KW: Do you feel more pressure because of last year?

MM: Not really. It’s not pressure. I have good owners that stand behind me. I’m feeling confident in what I do and I think that’s the most important thing. You can’t feel nervous about it. You have to train the horses the KW: This is the position you want to be in, with stakes horses.

MM: Oh yeah, absolutely. Thirty-seven of 40 (horses) are 2- and 3-year-olds. That’s what we’re looking for, for sure.

KW: What do you like to do when you’re not working?

MM: I like to be on the farm. There is always work on a farm when you own it. I like to be on the farm. I never leave the farm much if I’m not going racing.

Bettor Files Lawsuit Against Trainer For Blood Doping

A bettor has filed a lawsuit, alleging that a horse trainer and owner have violated state and federal racketeering laws and engaged in fraud by illegally doping a horse in a harness race at the Meadowlands.

As reported by the Associated Press, Illinois-based bettor Jeff Tretter alleges that trainer Robert Bresnahan Jr. and owner J.L. Sadowsky LLC illegally influenced the outcome of a Jan. 15, 2016, race at the Meadowlands. The duo’s horse, Tag Up And Go, won the race and it was later revealed that the horse had tested positive for EPO in an out-of-competition test taken by the Meadowlands in December. As a result, trainer Robert Bresnahan Jr. was barred from competing at the Meadowlands.

The Associated Press story was published early Wednesday morning, March 7, and by late that afternoon Standardbred owner and attorney Howard Taylor had advised media that if the lawsuit isn’t retracted, he’ll consider filing a libel suit on behalf of Bresnahan.

Taylor says the drug testing involving the horse has no official standing in the U.S. legal system because it was conducted at a lab in Hong Kong.

The New Jersey Racing Commission has not recognized out-of-competition test results from the Meadowlands, thus Tag Up And Go was not disqualified from the win and the Commission did not penalize Bresnahan Jr. There is no precedent for a redistribution of betting payoffs in the case of a positive test.

The lawsuit says Tretter placed wagers through an online betting site. The horses he picked to place first through fourth instead finished behind Tag Up And Go, who was a longshot in the race. According to his lawsuit, Tretter correctly picked the horses that finished second, third, fourth and fifth behind Tag Up And Go in a variety of wagers that would have paid a combined $31,835 if Tag Up and Go had been disqualified.

If the trainer is found liable under the Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act, he could be required to pay up to three times the amount of the bettor’s losses.

In addition, the bettor and plaintiff in the case approached PETA—People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals—with his concerns about the effect of the illegal substance on Tag Up And Go’s performance, and PETA sent out a press release on the lawsuit.

“The use of illegal substances and the misuse of legal medications not only harms horses—it amounts to race fixing,” says PETA Senior Vice President Kathy Guillermo.

“This lawsuit is a wake-up call for any trainers who dope horses—they could be sued for racketeering and fraud by bettors who lose money from betting on a race in which a horse is running under the influence.”

McCarthy Hopes For Another Big Year Of Driving

Andy McCarthy has spent the past several years rising through the ranks of North America's harness racing drivers, and the 31-year-old Aussie native is hoping to continue the trend when he returns later this month from his winter holiday.

McCarthy has seen his purse earnings increase annually since the start of 2013, reaching $5.52 million in 2017. His campaign last season was bolstered by successes on the Grand Circuit, winning events including the Jugette with Caviart Ally and Spirit of Massachusetts with JL Cruze, as well as in state-restricted stakes. In fact, McCarthy won seven stakes worth at least six figures in 2017, compared to three in 2016 and one in 2015.

Additionally, last year he hit the board 33 times in races worth at least $70,000, out of 63 attempts, and did so with horses with double- or triple-digit odds in 15 of those starts. Six times he had the favorite, winning five. He failed to get a check only four times with horses at less than 6-1 odds.

“Every year has kind of gotten better and better,” McCarthy said. “That’s always my goal. It’s a lot more fun driving the stakes horses than just the daily grind. I’d really like to get on the stakes circuit a little bit more and hopefully I can keep the horses I had last year and keep those horses on the right path.

“Hopefully now people are starting to trust me more with their good horses in the big-money races. If I can keep getting the job done more and more, hopefully it picks up from there. I think that’s the biggest thing. People need to see you as a big-race driver and not just a driver that can handle a good horse in an overnight race.”

A chance meeting with trainer Noel Daley inspired McCarthy to leave Australia and head to the U.S. in 2007. In his third lifetime drive in the States, McCarthy piloted Daley’s Took Hanover to a 1:49 win in the open at the Meadowlands. McCarthy now has 1,884 victories in North America.

“I’ve always said if it wasn’t for Noel I wouldn’t be here,” said McCarthy, who teamed with Daley on stakes-winners Caviart Ally, Cool Cates, and Sortie last year. “He was the guy early on that gave me a shot in the bigger races. He stuck by me and really put me on the map.”

McCarthy is a third generation horseman. His brothers Todd and Luke, who raced in the U.S. in 2009, are successful drivers in Australia and his father John is a highly-regarded trainer.

During the winter, McCarthy and his family return to Australia for several weeks, as well as travel to other locales abroad. This year included stops in Paris and Sri Lanka. While in Paris, McCarthy got to drive a race at Vincennes, piloting Angel Dark for trainer Anders Lindqvist and co-owner Peter Gerry/Arden Homestead Stable.

“My kids aren’t in school yet so I’m fortunate enough to do it,” said McCarthy.

McCarthy will return to driving in the middle of March, with his focus on the Meadowlands, Harrah’s Philadelphia and The Downs at Mohegan Sun Pocono. And, hopefully, the Grand Circuit.—By Ken Weingartner/USTA

Snowstorms Cause Some Disruptions With Breeding

Winter weather can affect breeding farms as much as racing operations. That's because many breeders are waiting for semen to arrive via couriers.

“Last Friday we didn’t receive any semen deliveries and we had nine mares waiting to be bred,” shared Bob Brady of Kentuckiana Farms near Lexington. “Some of it got here and we were OK with the mares ovulating, but we got nothing out of Ontario.”

Kentuckiana had a few foals with famous parents born in February. The farm boards the mares of Al Libfeld and Marvin Katz and their mares All The Time, Stubborn Belle, Designed To Be and Superstar Hanover foaled in February. All The Time, who won the 2016 Hambletonian Oaks and almost died from colic the following day, foaled her first offspring, a colt by Father Patrick, on Feb. 23. Stubborn Belle, whose first foal, a Father Patrick colt named Rifleman, sold for $390,000 at last fall’s Lexington Selected Yearling Sale, delivered a colt by Muscle Hill on Feb. 1. Designed To Be, the runner-up in the 2014 Hambletonian Oaks, gave birth to her second foal, a colt by Father Patrick, on Feb. 15. And Superstar Hanover had her third foal, a filly by Muscle Hill, on Feb. 5.

“These mares are off to a good start. Their foals are exceptional,” said Brady. “The Stubborn Belle colt is really a looker. It seems as soon as he stood up, he looked great.”

As of Monday, Brady was anxiously awaiting a birth by a mare who will deliver a colt conceived by Stienam’s Place, the dam of $2.4 million winner Put On A Show plus the stakes winners Showherthemoney and Good Day Mate. Stienam’s Place is now 24 years old, thus the decision was made to breed her and transfer the embryo. The foal is a colt by Somebeachsomewhere.

“We don’t own any fillies out of Stienam’s Place, so I was praying for a filly and I couldn’t wait to find out so we did the ultrasound to see,” said Brady. “So we’re still hoping for a filly if she can get in foal again.”

Brady said if Stienam’s Place comes in heat, her mate would be Always B Miki and the embryo will be transferred. If she does not get in heat, she will be retired.

“This is the first year that she’s starting to show her age,” said Brady of Stienam’s Place. “She just hasn’t kept weight on this winter, but I’m hoping when the weather improves that being out on the grass, that she’ll bounce back some.”

Another nor’easter storm hit parts of the northeast on Wednesday, March 7, but did not disrupt much breeding activity. Central Pennsylvania, where Hanover Shoe Farms and Diamond Creek Farms stand stallions, didn’t receive much snow and the farms collected their horses and shipped semen as usual. Farms in New York were in the crosshairs of the storm but semen was able to be shipped via couriers.

Blue Chip Farms got lucky, receiving only about six inches of snow.

“The farm is just north enough that we missed the brunt of the storm,” said Blue Chip general manager Jean Brown, who lives 20 miles away from the farm and had to deal with 18 inches of snow at home. “The snow also started later than they predicted, so we got stallions collected and the couriers got here to pick up semen. If you had a mare that was ovulating and you had thought about putting her on a truck to be bred (per New York’s breeding program rules, semen cannot be shipped outside the state), those mares didn’t make the trip. But it’s early. There’s time to get the mares on the next cycle.”

A foot of snow fell at Cameo Hills Farm, which is about 13 miles south of Blue Chip Farms, but farm owner Steve Jones took his cue from the forecast and collected Huntsville early in the morning.

“A courier from upstate weathered the storm and came down to pick up semen,” said Jones via text. “It didn’t get really bad until the middle of the afternoon.—By Kathy Parker

Meadowlands’ handle tops $3.4 mil
They came to play. Meadowlands fans wagered with both hands throughout Saturday night’s 13-race program and despite only two horses paying $10 or more and six races that saw favorites emerge victorious, the betting swelled to a new 2018 high. For the first time this year, wagering surpassed the magic $3 million mark. In fact, it wasn’t merely surpassed, it was smashed. The all-source total handle of $3,454,633 easily outdistanced the industry handle leader’s previous 2018 best, which was $2,790,201 on Jan. 27.
