Remmens Have “Power” In Levy, “Peter” In Hirt

Brothers Ray and Larry Remmen will be working both sides of the Hudson River on Saturday night as the stable will send out Word Power in the first of four $50,000 divisions of the second round of the George Morton Levy Memorial Series at Yonkers Raceway and Wake Up Peter and March Awareness, respectively, in the series finals of the Clyde Hirt and Horse & Groom at the Meadowlands.

The 4-year-old Word Power will be making his second start of the year on Saturday when he lines up in post 4 for driver Jody Jamieson in Race 4 at Yonkers. The son of Western Ideal finished fourth in his debut, beaten three lengths by Mach It So, who drew into the third Levy split on Saturday.

A winner of $378,584 last year for owner Brad Grant, Word Power’s biggest score came in the $176,000 Windy City Pace at Maywood Park. He also picked up nice paychecks with a second-place finish in the $360,211 Cane Pace final at Tioga Downs, a third-place finish in the $450,000 Adios at The Meadows, and fourth-place finishes in the $500,000 Hempt Memorial at Pocono Downs and $256,000 American National at Balmoral Park.

“We were very happy with his first race,” said Ray Remmen. “He would have had to come first-over very early so it was alright that Jody (Jamieson) left him in. He finished with quite a bit of pace. Hopefully, this week we can work out a better trip.”

Remmen admits having at least two Ron Burke-trained horses in every Levy division can be a major obstacle. There are 29 horses entered in round two, with 10 coming from the Burke barn. On Saturday, Word Power will be sandwiched on the gate between the Burke-trained Bettor’s Edge and Clear Vision.

“You’re always dealing with at least two (Burke horses) and that makes it a little tougher,” Remmen said with a laugh. “And they’re good and very aggressive off the gate, so it puts you in a bad spot. It’ll be up to Jody to see how it works out.”

At the Meadowlands, Wake Up Peter will start from post 10 in the $83,000 Hirt final for owner Grant, who purchased the 4-year-old son of Rocknroll Hanover at the Tattersalls January Mixed Sale for $210,000. Wake Up Peter, who amassed more than $300,000 earnings last year despite not winning a race in 19 starts, saw his four-race unbeaten streak in 2014 snapped when he made a break past the three-quarters with driver Scott Zeron last time out in the second round of the Hirt.

“We don’t know for sure what happened,” said Remmen of Wake Up Peter, who has earned $26,750 of his purchase price back in four starts for owner Grant. “On Monday morning, (former trainer) Tony Alagna, who is at the same training center we’re at, asked Larry, ‘What did he do, have a Peter moment?’ I don’t think that was it...after the race we found a nail protruding from his hind foot. He stepped on a nail and it was sticking out of his hind frog, but when we pulled it out no blood came out. But I'm not going to use that as an excuse.

"We've tightened up the hobbles and put some extra boots on him in case he was touching," added Remmen, "but he's going to have to overcome post position 10. I think he'll race good as he trained very well. We're pleased going in and we think he's fit and that won't be a problem."

Zeron will also drive March Awareness in the $60,600 Horse & Groom final, starting from post 2. Owned by Ohioans Carolyn Brechler and John Rhoads Jr., March Awareness brings a career slate of seven wins in 19 starts and $41,960 in earnings into Saturday's race.

"I think we may be in a bit over our head," said Remmen about the 4-year-old son of Ken Warkentin. "He's a nice horse and trots good, but there are a couple in there that something ridiculous would have to happen up front for us. As far as winning the race, a lot of stuff would have to go our way. We'd have to benefit off somebody else's bad luck. Hopefully, we can pick up some pieces coming home."

Remmen said Wake Up Peter will start next in the Whata Baron Series that gets underway April 5 at the Meadowlands, while March Awareness will race in overnights at Yonkers. —By Gordon Waterstone

STRETCH CALL

BY DAVE BRIGGS

Lessons From The PETA Video: Racing Must Change

Animal rights activists infiltrating shedrows was inevitable, of course. How horse racing chooses to react to the fallout from the People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals' (PETA) video taken in Thoroughbred trainer Steve Asmussen's barn will be critical to the sport's future.

(Last week The New York Times published a story about PETA's undercover time spent in Asmussen's barn, complete with an edited video.)

For sure, harness racing is not immune. For sure, defense and denial is not a winning public relations strategy. For sure, the public doesn't much care that those that abuse their horses constitute the minority working in the industry. For sure, it's folly to try to discredit PETA—despite how easy that is—or point out what was or was not shown in a nine-minute video culled from four months, or be thankful it wasn't worse. It was bad enough.

It's time to own this one; to admit some people do treat their horses like commodities, not living creatures, and take serious action to make it stop. Now.

Let's start by changing a culture that routinely turns a blind eye to wrongdoing instead of reporting it. Let's start by educating everyone on the participant side of the game—from grooms, through trainers, drivers, vets and right up to owners—that playing the long game is the best route to prosperity both for individuals and the sport. By that I mean horse racing has to temper this win-at-all-costs-now attitude, particularly because a non-consenting animal is at the core of everything the sport does.

If people won't stand up for a business that provides their livelihood at a time when horse racing is threatened with extinction due to waning public interest, at least they could be selfish about it. Every time you see something you know to be wrong and fail to report it, you might as well hand over your wallet as well because you are complicit in willfully allowing others to rob you of income and a future.

I've never understood why participant groups don't follow the tradition of doctors' Hippocratic Oath and require their members to swear to do no harm both to their horses and their fellow horsepeople. Sure, it would be mostly symbolic, but it would at least reinforce what conduct was expected from everyone. Heck, even my kids were taught in elementary school to stand up and report bullies.

Horse owners can play a key role in changing the horse racing culture by using reputable trainers, grooms, drivers and vets, having a zero tolerance policy for drugs administered for the purpose of performance enhancement, insisting their horses not be forced to work when seriously ill or injured and taking the pressure off trainers and drivers to win each and every time horses race.

Trainers must communicate to owners that horses won't be entered to race when those horses are unfit to do so successfully.

Drivers can refuse to take the reins from trainers they know have committed acts injurious to horses, others and the game.

Vets must be ethical and prepared to report the misconduct of colleagues and place animal welfare ahead of profits.

Racetracks and racing commission officials must step up random, off-site testing protocols and inspections, increase penalties for those that break the rules and abuse horses and be willing to follow Jeff Gural's lead and toss out the offenders.

For goodness sake, let's all stop defending people who discredit the game.

Yes, it's going to take chutzpah and a change of mindset from everyone. Yes, horsepeople reluctant to break with long-held traditions (i.e. whipping), are going to have to stop minding their own business and looking the other way, because the consequences of inaction are clear. If we don't take better care of the horses, we won't have an industry left.

The animal activists are just getting started.

Evolve or die. It's that simple.

Callahan Returns From Australia Pumped About Wildcats

"How about them Cats?" That was the first thing University of Kentucky graduate Corey Callahan said when he answered his cell phone at Los Angeles International Airport (LAX) on Wednesday morning, March 26, after spending the past week in Australia.

Callahan was talking about the UK Wildcats, who upset the previously-undefeated Wichita State Shockers last weekend in Round 3 of the NCAA basketball tournament to advance to the Sweet Sixteen. UK now plays the University of Louisville on Friday night, and with a scheduled 9:45 p.m. tip-off time Callahan said he will be able to watch the second half after he's finished racing at the Meadowlands.

Callahan hadn't even gone through customs when he spoke to HarnessRacing Weekend Preview. He said he had a 90-minute layover at LAX before he'd be boarding another plane heading to Washington, D.C., where he'll then make the drive to his Delaware home.

Callahan was in Australia as one of three Harness Racing Victoria international ambassadors, joining trainer Jonas Czernyson and Thoroughbred jockey Chantal Sutherland-Kruse. Callahan, who played for UK's hockey team, said while he may have been thousands of miles away, he was on the internet checking the UK scores of their early tournament games.

Callahan said he was disappointed with his unsuccessful lone drive at Tabcorp Park Melton on March 22, but glad he had a chance to tour some of the country, including a stop at the Menangle racetrack outside of Sydney and at the farm of brothers Luke and Andrew McCarthy.

Callahan drove the Dean Braun-trained trotter Duke Of The Moment in a Drivers Invitation race and while he was behind a longshot, he said he believed he had a great chance to win until the trotter made a break.

"When the draw came out and I talked to some of the other drivers and trainers, it didn't look like had a horse that had a shot," said Callahan. "In the last turn I was locked in but had a lot of go. They have a 'push-out rule' there and the horse outside of me was all done. I was ready to push him out but my horse made a break. I really think I was a winner because they were all done up at the top. I was in a good striking spot to make a run at them."

There won't be much time for Callahan to get over any jet lag as he said he planned on driving at Dover Downs on Thursday, doing a doubleheader at Harrah's Philadelphia and the Meadowlands on Friday, and then back to the Big M on Saturday and Philadelphia on Sunday. When he left for his Australia journey he was leading the North American dash standings, but upon his arrival he finds himself second behind Aaron Merriman. — By Gordon Waterstone

Cat Manzi Retires From Driving, Joins Cancelliere Stable

Racing fans of every generation will no longer be seeing the familiar blue and white colors of long time fan favorite and Hall of Famer Catello Manzi behind the starting gate.

During the course of a 40-year career, Manzi has endured plenty of hard knocks—more broken bones than he can remember and multiple concussions. For Manzi, all of these things have been just obstacles to be endured and overcome. But last year two very serious accidents, one on the heels of another, caused a permanent change in Manzi’s way of life.

In the first, on Sept. 6, 2013, at Freehold Raceway, Manzi fractured bones in his pelvis, bones that had previously remained intact. As he has always done, Manzi recuperated and kept his focus on getting back to his higher calling, driving horses. And he did return to driving, winning a race on his first day back.

But that euphoria was short-lived when on Friday, Jan. 10, on a sloppy rain-soaked track, the Freehold starting car careened in a full circle as it pulled away from the field and hit several horses and drivers, including Manzi, now 63.

“That was basically it,” said Manzi. “Usually, all of the other times I would just wait, work on it, get better and go on. But I really can’t take that chance anymore.”

Manzi’s wife Ellen, who says she always got a feeling when something bad had happened, said that she was always astounded by the punishment her husband’s body could endure, and his constant determination to get back to what he loved doing.

“He would always be working harder than the therapists said he needed to and was bugging the doctors all of the time to give him the OK to return sooner than he wanted to.”

But neither is Manzi ready to walk away from racing entirely.

“You know, one thing you learn as a driver is that as soon as you get in the bike and get the feel of the horse, you can tell if they are ready or up to the task.

“I have been really lucky in that I have gotten to win races like the North America Cup with Mantacular for a good friend (Larry Rathbone) and other big races with horses like Winky’s Goal, Harmonious and Artsplace. All of them were great, but it was just as special to be able to help a friend get a young horse or a longshot to the winner’s circle. Winning a race is a great feeling no matter where you do it or who it’s for.”

While Manzi may no longer be the pilot, he’ll still be actively involved in racing. He has signed on to be a part of the Cancelliere brothers (Tom and John) team.

“They have really done amazing things with their farm (Magical Acres), everything is state of the art,” noted Manzi. “They are friends of mine and I went there to do some training and keep busy. I was so impressed by everything I saw there that when they asked me if I wanted to be a part of it, I immediately said yes. You know, it’s one kind of pride to drive a horse to a win, but it’s a different kind of pride to be a part of the team that gets the horse to that point. I enjoy that as well.”

As for the Manzi family, all of whom have spent far too much time in hospital waiting rooms, Manzi said, “They are thrilled. They couldn’t be happier. My youngest, Caroline, who is seven, doesn’t even understand how different it will be for her, to have a dad who is home a lot more.

Getitoffyourchest Aims For Weiss Repeat

Now that he is healthy, Getitoffyourchest is trying to get it going. Or, maybe more appropriately after winning his first two starts of the year, keep it going.

The 4-year-old male pacer is two for two this season after capturing his opening round division of the Bobby Weiss Series last weekend at Mohegan Sun at Pocono Downs. He starts from post 1 in the second of three $15,000 second-round divisions Saturday.

Getitoffyourchest, owned by Delaware’s David Banks and trained by Richard “Dickie”

Lewis, last year won two of five races before being sidelined by a hairline ankle fracture. For his career, the son of stallion Tell All has won five of 10 starts and earned $23,265.

Driven by Mike Simons, Getitoffyourchest won by a head over Dinner At The Met in a lifetime-best 1:52.1 last week. The Lunch Pail, the favorite, was third.

“He can pace with them if he races like he has been,” Lewis said. “He’s off to a good start. I think he’ll be even a little sharper this week. We’ll just do the best we can do.”

Getitoffyourchest was purchased for $3,000 at the 2011 Lexington Selected Sale. His dam, Jolie Hanover, is a half-sister to Jimmie Hanover, who was runner-up in the 2010 New York Sire Stakes championship for 3-year-old male pacers. His family also includes stakes-winners Lady Joanna and Stonebridge Regal.

“He was a nice looking colt and had a lot of sense,” Lewis said. “He had a lot of speed. As a 2 year old, his knees got to bothering him, so we quit with him. Last year, he had the hairline fracture and we brought him back real slow. He’s just a nice colt. He’s easy going and good to be around. You’d never know he’s a stud.”

The 66-year-old Lewis and Banks have known each other for decades, but Lewis only started training for Banks about three years ago. Lewis, who conditioned free-for-all trotter Calvert in the late 1970s, has worked for a number of trainers over the years, including his son Doug.

“I’ve known Mr. Banks for a long time,” Lewis said. “We drove together in our younger days. He needed a trainer and we’ve lucked out and come up with a few decent horses. Hopefully we’ll get a few more.”

The five-week series concludes with a $30,000 final April 19. (HRC)

Hoosier Park, Harrah’s Philadelphia Open 2014 Meets On Friday

Hoosier Park, which underwent track improvements late last fall and in the past few weeks, and Harrah’s Philadelphia, which has been handling scrutiny of its track surface in the aftermath of a race accident last November that seriously injured driver Anthony Coletta, open their 2014 race meets on Friday.

Because of non-compliance with the Pennsylvania State Harness Racing Commission’s requests in disclosing what work had been done on the racetrack following the incident, Harrah’s Philadelphia’s 2014 race dates were suspended earlier this year. When the commission was satisfied that the racetrack had complied with its request, the suspension was lifted, although the race meet was delayed two weeks from its original opening date of March 14.

Friday's card gets underway at 12:40 p.m. (EDT). The featured event on the program is Race 11, a $20,000 conditioned race for fillies and mares. The 5-2 morning-line choice is Continual Velocity, who leaves from post 2 for driver Yannick Gingras and trainer Ron Burke, who was the leading conditioner at the track last year in wins (152) and earnings ($2,350,002). A 6-year-old daughter of Real Artist out of the Breeders Crown champion mare Extreme Velocity, Continual Velocity has one win in five starts this year and is coming off a third-place finish in a B1/A2 race March 14 at the Meadowlands.

While Burke will start two horses on the opener at Philly, he will have four in at Hoosier Park, where he also led the 2014 trainer standings in wins (108) and earnings ($2,543,979). Included in that quartet is Blissfull Romance, who is the 4-1 third choice in the featured $22,000 Invitational Pace for fillies and mares scheduled as Race 10.

Ricky Macomber Jr. will drive Blissfull Romance, who is coming back just four days after a win against lesser competition Monday at The Meadows, from post 3. The morning-line favorite from the outside post 6 is the Ernie Gaskin-trained American Girl, who will be driven by Peter Wrenn in her season debut after two winning qualifiers.

Hoosier Park's card begins at 5:15 p.m. (EDT).

Harness Horse Youth Foundation

Our Mission: To provide young people information and experiences with harness horses

The Harness Horse Youth Foundation, established in 1976, addresses youth education throughout the United States and Canada. HHYF is a charitable 501 (c) 3 organization which offers opportunities for hands-on learning with Standardbreds. Additional programs include publishing instructive information and administering scholarships for students pursuing higher education.

Campbell Returns To Sulky Friday Night

John Campbell, harness racing's all-time leading money winning driver with more than $285 million in career earnings, returns to the sulky on Friday night at the Meadowlands.

Campbell has been out of action for six weeks due to a fractured collarbone sustained in a non-racing accident. He has drives in nine of the 13 (two of those are restricted to amateur drivers) races on Friday and a full slate on Saturday as well.

"I'm certainly looking forward to getting back to racing horses," Campbell said. "I got a really good report from the doctor this last visit. Strength and mobility are back to where I was before the break. I've been training some the past few weeks to get back in the swing.

"I'm back in time to get some work in before the 3 year olds start up and stakes season gets underway, so if I had to miss the timing was good."

Campbell will add strength to the "Legends" team in the current Drivers' Tournament that pits the established Meadowlands drivers against the up and comers who have been anointed as "Phenoms" for the purpose of this contest. Corey Callahan is another welcome addition to the "Legends" side of the ledger upon his return from a trip to Australia. (Meadowlands)

Missevil A Blossom Contender At Woodbine

Kyle Reibeling's Missevil has certainly made her impact this season while racing at Woodbine Racetrack, and the talented filly could be in for a prosperous payday in the coming weeks. The swift pacer has banked $30,100 this season from five starts, including three wins and a second-place finish for owners Mike Timpano and Frank Cirillo.

A daughter of Armbro Deuce-Impudent, Missevil will begin from post 6 in the second of two $15,000 Blossom Series divisions Friday at Woodbine. The rich $30,000 (added) final will take place on Monday, April 11.

"We have the six hole in a six-horse race, so that doesn't bother me and we won't be sitting 21 lengths back like last week," Reibeling said. "It's a good series and a nice fit for her. The filly that beat her last week is in there, which makes for another great race."

Missevil qualified just once last year as a rookie before calling it a season and Reibeling took over conditioning the bay this past winter.

"I got her when she was training back this winter when I returned from Sudbury," he said. "I don't think it was a surprise to anyone that worked with her in the past that she has the speed and desire."

So far this season, Missevil has developed an off-the-pace racing style, which is by the design of her veteran conditioner.

"She can get real hot," Reibeling said. "When we first schooled her, she was a little erratic so we made some changes to calm her down, but whether she had the speed or not was something I wasn't worried about.

"It just seems like the plan is to race her from behind and teach her," Reibeling continued. "We're obviously thinking long term with her and we are going to do right by her."

Reibeling, who is approaching $2 million in purse earnings as a conditioner, admires one key attribute about his stable star.

"Her will," he said. "She just has that tremendous will to win. She's not the biggest horse and probably not the fastest horse out there, but I don't think there's any other horse around that I've ever worked with—maybe LH Stryker—that has that killer instinct and will to win like she does. She's small but has that little engine that could."

As for the future of the Missevil, Reibeling remains optimistic about a successful summer with his speedy pacer.

"We're going to stick to the OSS and just race around here. We're confident that she can be a Gold filly this season and there is enough money in the province for us to tackle. We're going to take it week by week, but hopefully we have a lot of fun this summer." (WEG)

Sunday's USTA Board Meeting Streamed Live

The 2014 USTA annual meetings are scheduled for Sunday, March 30, and Monday, March 31, at the Hilton Columbus at Easton in Columbus, Ohio.

Following Rules and Executive Committee meetings in the morning on Sunday, the Board of Directors general session, which will be streamed live on the USTA website (<http://www.ustrotting.com/>), will begin at 12:30 p.m. (EDT).

Keynote speaker for the general session will be Ohio State Racing Commission Chairman Robert Schmitz. Among the topics on the agenda are: the introduction of new USTA directors, proclamations and recognition of former directors, an election of officers, the president's report from Phil Langley and executive vice president's report from Mike Tanner, a financial report, presentation/vote on revised bylaws, and rule change proposals.

The final item on the general session agenda will include a discussion of medication rules and a presentation on harness racing's social media initiative by Rob Key, CEO of Converseon, the USTA's social media marketing agency.

Meetings are scheduled Sunday afternoon and Monday morning involving the following committees: Fairs, Pari-Mutuel, Regulatory, and Registration-Owners/Breeders on Sunday and Driver/Trainer, Finance, Rules and Communications/Marketing on Monday.

The President's Awards luncheon honoring 2014 recipients Bob Carson and Gabe Wand will be held on Sunday at 11:45 a.m.

The 2014 USTA annual meetings will conclude with a general session commencing at 2:30 p.m. (EDT) on Monday that will include committee reports, ad hoc committee assignments, approval of the budget, and announcement of the location and dates for the 2015 annual meetings.

All USTA members are welcome to attend the meetings. (USTA)

The Meadows Hosting College Games Charity

The Meadows Standardbred Owners Association (MSOA) is pleased to announce its first ever College Games for Charity. The event will take place Friday night, March 28, at The Meadows.

Students representing several area colleges will compete in five events, including a handicapping challenge, an egg and spoon race, basketball shooting contest, a corn hole game and a bowling challenge. The team with the most points will earn $500 for the charity of its choice, while second and third place will receive $250 and $100, respectively, for their charities.

The MSOA is co-sponsoring the event with The Meadows Chaplaincy Program.

In addition to the teams competing in the College Games, anyone with a state issued and college ID, showing proof of being 18 years of age or older, will receive a $2 wagering voucher and a coupon for a free hot dog, courtesy of the MSOA and The Meadows Racing.

As always, the Friday night races will also feature the MSOA's popular "Spin To Win" prize wheel and additional giveaways. (MSOA)

Captaintreacherous Aiming For Meadowlands Maturity

As the 2013 harness racing season came to a close, the then 3-year-old Captaintreacherous headed to the Meadowlands for a race against the sport's best older male pacers. Although "The Captain" finished sixth in that race—the $512,000 TVG Free for All Championship won by ageless Foiled Again—trainer Tony Alagna was happy with what he saw.

Now as the 4-year-old Captaintreacherous gets ready to compete regularly in the older division, Alagna remains pleased. Captaintreacherous returned to Alagna's stable in February after two months of R&R at Brittany Farms in Kentucky and is being pointed toward a June return to action.

"He matured a lot from the time he was turned out," Alagna said. "He grew some more, he put on some more muscle tone. When we sent him to Brittany he was still in very good condition, flesh-wise and weight-wise, for as hard as he raced. When he came back in, he just put on more bulk. He looked tremendous when he came in.

"Right now we're shooting to qualify sometime at the end of May or the first part of June. We'll set up his schedule after we qualify, but we'll probably aim for the Meadowlands Maturity (on June 13). I'm very happy with his progress. You can just see that maturity and how much he's changed with just 60 days turned out. It's really amazing. I'm excited, very excited."

Trained by Alagna and driven by Tim Tetrick for the Captaintreacherous Racing ownership group, The Captain joined Rocknroll Hanover and Gallo Blue Chip as the only horses to win the Breeders Crown, North America Cup, and Meadowlands Pace in the same season.

Captaintreacherous became the first horse to win back-to-back Pacer of the Year honors since Jenna's Beach Boy in 1995-96 and joined Niatross as the only horses to accomplish the feat at ages 2 and 3 since the award was first given in 1970. Pacer Bret Hanover was honored at ages 2, 3 and 4 with the Horse of the Year Award from 1964-66.

Undefeated female trotter Bee A Magician received the 2013 Horse of the Year Award over Captaintreacherous and Foiled Again.

"Of course you want to be Horse of the Year, but he got Pacer of the Year and I thought he deserved it," Alagna said. "He put the best resume together for the entire year. No other pacer put together as complete a resume at (age) 2 or at 3 when he won the award. No horse compiled a whole year like he did.

"Bee A Magician is a phenomenal filly and it was a great year for racing."

Captaintreacherous now joins Foiled Again, Golden Receiver and the rest of the sport's top older pacers in a star-studded division. Alagna is ready to join the fun with Captaintreacherous.

"I haven't raced a horse like this, as far as the older division, since Lis Mara," Alagna said, referring to the sport's top older male pacer of 2006, who he helped condition while second trainer for the Erv Miller Stable. "I have great memories of racing Lis Mara, going to places and how much the fans appreciate the older division. It's going to be exciting." (HRC)

Canadian Hall Of Fame Announces Nominees

The Canadian Horse Racing Hall of Fame has announced its 2014 ballot. A total of 36 horses and people, including 18 Standardbred racing candidates and 18 Thoroughbred racing candidates, have been selected to appear on this year's ballot. A 20-person Election Committee for each breed will declare the winners in their respective categories. Results will be announced Tuesday, April 8.

Standardbred ballots representing this year's six voting categories are as follows:

Male Horse: Blissfull Hall, JM Vangogh and Rocknroll Hanover.

Female Horse: B Cor Tamara, Dreamfair Eternal and J Cs Nathalie.

Trainer-Driver: Yves Filion, William Gale, and Wally Hennessey.

Builders: Dr. Ted Clarke, John B. Ferguson and Robert Murphy.

Veteran Horse: Albatross, Artsplace, and Happy Lady.

Communicators: Harry Eisen, Bill Galvin and Frank Salive. (Canadian Horse Racing Hall of Fame)
