Ariana G Heads To Hoosier Park

Two baby races at the Meadowlands and two victories. Two New Jersey Sires Stakes at the Big M and two victories. An elim and final of the Jim Doherty Memorial at the Meadowlands and two wins. The Champlain and then the Peaceful Way elim and final at Mohawk, and three more victories.

That's the resume of the 2-year-old filly trotter Ariana G, who is unbeaten in nine career starts and shows a pari-mutuel resume of 7-7-0-0 with earnings of $407,092 for breeders-owners Marvin Katz and Al Libfeld.

"She is really special and the best 2-year-old filly I've ever had."

—Jimmy Takter

After Ariana G’s latest win in the $275,880 Peaceful Way final on Sept. 17 it was expected that trainer Jimmy Takter would send the daughter of Muscle Hill directly to The Red Mile for a pair of Grand Circuit starts. Ariana G is headed to Lexington, but not until after a quick detour to Hoosier Park for Friday night's $250,000 Kentuckiana Stallion Management Trot.

With regular driver Yannick Gingras also making the trip to Indiana, Ariana G will start from post 9 in the Kentuckiana Stallion Management as she goes for her eighth victory.

Ariana G won the Peaceful Way in 1:54, four-fifths of a second faster than Royal Charm’s effort to win the Elegantimage for 3-year-old filly trotters that same night. Takter not only pointed that out to Weekend Preview, but he also declared Ariana G as the best first-year filly trotter he’s ever had in his barn. And that list includes divisional champions Armbro Prowess, Solveig, Passionate Glide, Pampered Princess, To Dream On and Shake It Cerry.

“She showed early talent right away, but you never know how they are going to develop,” Takter said about the filly named for the singer Ariana Grande. “She is really special and the best 2-year-old filly I’ve ever had. She just does it with no effort.” —By Gordon Waterstone
Hannelore Hanover Supplemented To Centaur Classic

Saturday night’s $220,000 Centaur Classic for older trotters at Hoosier Park has a surprise entry in the 4-year-old trotting mare Hannelore Hanover, who was supplemented to the race at a cost of $20,000 to owners Burke Racing Stable, Weaver Bruscemi LLC, Frank Baldachino and J&T Silva Stables, the latter entity purchasing an interest early last week.

The Silvas bought into Hannelore Hanover on the eve of the Sept. 17 Maple Leaf Trot at Mohawk Racetrack, where she finished second in a game performance to Resolve. It was just the second defeat in 16 starts this year for Hannelore Hanover, who counts victories against her male counterparts in the Hambletonian Maturity and an Open Trot at the Meadowlands.

Two of Hannelore Hanover’s 14 wins came in legs of the Miss Versatility Series, and while she missed three preliminaries, she still ranked second in the final standings behind only Jewels In Hook. While Hannelore Hanover could have raced in Thursday’s $120,000 Miss Versatility final at Delaware, Ohio, she instead heads to Indiana for the Centaur Classic.

“We thought about it (the Miss Versatility) but we figured it’d be too much (just five days after the Maple Leaf),” said co-owner Mark Weaver. “It’s funny, but at the start of the year we are thinking we have to get two or three of the Miss Versatility legs and we’d be eligible for the final, and it’s $120,000 and a big race on her card. But all of a sudden, when you’re going for $500,000 and $1 million, it changes your priorities a little bit.”

Yannick Gingras, who raced at Delaware, Ohio, on Wednesday and Thursday before returning home to New Jersey, heads back to Indiana to drive Hannelore Hanover from post 6 in the Centaur Classic. He said Hannelore Hanover was game in her defeat to Resolve in the Maple Leaf Trot after leading for most of the distance.

“The front end was no good and I knew that going in and I was planning on racing her from behind,” Gingras said.

“Then 10 steps out of the gate, nobody left, so I crossed right to the front. I thought if it was going to be that easy to the front I’ll take it and take my chance from there. But then Mario (Baillargeon, with Musical Rhythm) came and changed the whole outcome of the race. That’s racing and why nothing is given to you. I thought she performed well and I was happy with her.”

Weaver added he is excited about Hannelore Hanover’s recent invitation to the $500,000 International Trot at Yonkers on Oct. 15, where she will take on some of the world’s best trotters in the 1 ¼-mile contest. The race will be Hannelore Hanover’s first-ever start on a half-mile track.

“We don’t know how good she’ll be on a half as she’s never done it, but the added distance, she has done that,” said Weaver. “I’m looking forward to it being on our turf and they’re the ones who have to ship over here.” — By Gordon Waterstone

Rheinheimer Likes Odds In Hoosier Park Pacing Derby

The $170,000 Hoosier Park Pacing Derby has attracted a compact field of six, and starting from post three, trainer Larry Rheinheimer likes his chances Saturday with home-bred Freaky Feet Pete. The four-year-old son of Rockin Image returns to Hoosier Park after a strong fourth-place effort in the $225,000 Jim Ewart Memorial, held September 10 at Scioto Downs.

“I thought he raced awful well for coming out of the nine hole,” the trainer noted. “He was pacing through the wire and gaining. I was real happy with him. For the trip he got, the cover didn’t move the way we needed it to move to get up with the other two (Always B Miki and Wiggle It Jiggleit) up front. When you get those other two out in front of you a ways you’ve got a challenge.”

Despite the outside post at Scioto, regular driver Trace Tetrick and Freaky Feet Pete came home in :27.4 (a faster last quarter than the three that finished ahead of them) and clocked a 1:47.4 mile for owners Mary Jo and Marty Rheinheimer. Ewart Memorial winner Always B Miki and fifth and sixth-place finishers All Bets Off and Dealt A Winner join “Pete” in the Hoosier Park Pacing Derby, as does U.S. Pacing Championship victor Shamballa and Indiana-sired Always At My Place.

“I like my draw a little bit better than I have lately, but I don’t like Miki on the rail,” the veteran horseman said with a laugh. “But we’ll give him a chase.”

With six wins in 13 starts this season, including earnings of $361,557, Rheinheimer is pleased with the way his charge has stepped up and performed in the open ranks, but it hasn’t come without challenges. Prior to his effort in the Ewart, Freaky Feet Pete made two starts at Hoosier Park. Competing at his home track in the $325,000 Dan Patch Stake, the pacer raced sixth before returning to the winner’s circle September 2 in the $21,000 Invitational. Patch Stake, the pacer raced sixth before returning to the winner’s circle September 2 in the $21,000 Invitational.

Rheinheimer commented, “He’s got to race good before we go out there. If he could win a couple of these next few starts, I’ll send him that way and give him a chance.” — By James Platz
Texts Cause Suspicion Among Jug Trainers

Betting Line and driver David Miller won the 71st edition of the Little Brown Jug on Thursday afternoon, rolling to a commanding 1:49 victory in the second heat on a hot and sunny afternoon. Although there wasn’t a cloud in the sky, the atmosphere for the Jug was not exactly picture-perfect as text messages sent by the winning trainer, Casie Coleman, prompted concerns that her horse could have been treated, in violation of the rules, the morning of the Jug.

Trainers Tony Alagna, Ron Burke and Jimmy Takter said they were filing a formal protest with the Ohio State Racing Commission and made it clear they were racing their horses under protest.

One of Coleman’s assistant trainers lost their phone sometime Wednesday night at the fairgrounds and when the person who found the phone tried to figure out who it belonged to, they found text messages. The content of the text messages compelled the person to contact the judges.

Presiding judge John Yinger, who is employed by the Ohio State Racing Commission, decided the text messages did not contain evidence that Betting Line should be scratched from the Jug, but Takter, Alagna and Burke were so upset by what the texts said—and to them, implied—that they conferred with Yinger and the owners of their horses over the course of hours.

Takter discussed the situation with Jeff Snyder, co-owner of Lyons Snyder, on the backstretch. At one point they agreed to scratch the horse.

One of the text messages read, “anytime between 8:30-10:30 range when its clear safely (sic) get his treatment into him.” A second text said something about a laser. There was also a third text.

At one point during the trainers’ communication with Yinger, they said they were definitely not taking their horses out on the track until they got an explanation. Eventually they decided to boycott the post parade and file a formal protest.

Alagna, Burke and Takter, representing nine of the 11 Jug entries, decided their horses in the first elimination heat, that included Betting Line, would boycott post parading with Betting Line. Betting Line was on the track for a full five minutes by himself before the others joined him on the track.

After winning the first heat of the Jug, Coleman called the texts—which she confirmed were sent—and resulting drama “bullshit.”

Coleman, who is a member of the Little Brown Jug Society, claimed the “treatment” was simply yogurt.

Coleman said her tack trunks, horse trailer and car were searched by racing officials.

Coleman also commented on the boycott of the post parade. “I said, ‘you know what, if this is going to keep them all happy, and go out there and race for five minutes...we’ll do whatever we need to do to cooperate.”

Alagna’s distress about the day worsened when his top colt Racing Hill was parked out first-over in brutal fractions that included a :27 second quarter. Although Racing Hill held for third, Alagna scratched him from the final heat.

“It’s just not right,” Alagna said about having to race with suspicion about the integrity of the race. “I think she should resign from the Little Brown Jug Society.

“We saw intent to do something based on texts,” continued Alagna. “There was intent to do something, We’re supposed to be in detention. Everyone is in this secured barn.”

In the hour or so before the first elimination heat, Burke said he did not want to race but had to consider his partners in the horses they entered. Wingfield Brothers of Ohio, who share ownership of Manhattan Beach, had a group of family and friends numbering around 80 with them at the Jug.

Coleman said she asked the judges to return the cell phone but the judges never received the phone, only screenshots of the texts.

The Delaware County Fair issued this statement: “The horsemen expressed their concerns to the Ohio State Racing Commission (OSRC). Little Brown Jug officials worked with the OSRC and the horsemen and we are pleased that the horsemen participated in our event. At this point it is an OSRC decision.” — harnessracing.com

Kentucky Announces 2-Year-Old Purses For 2017

Horse owners selling Kentucky-bred yearlings this fall have a distinct advantage: increased purses and opportunities to race in multiple jurisdictions’ sire stakes programs.

The Kentucky Horse Racing Commission’s (KHRC) Sire Stakes Advisory Panel recommends increased purses for the 2017 Kentucky Sire Stakes (KYSS) and Kentucky county fair circuit. The 2017 racing season will be the first year that two year olds that were bred under the new lucrative dual eligibility program will race.

Under the new program, resulting foals will be eligible not only for the KYSS program, but also other state programs as well.

The KHRC is expected to approve the new purse structures before the end of the year. “It was great to receive input from the harness racing community as a whole. Everyone was engaged in this process and we are all looking forward to a successful 2017 racing season,” said Advisory Panel chairman Kenneth A. Jackson.

The dual eligibility program began with the 2014 breeding season. Horses are eligible to the KYSS if the horse is out of a mare, even if sired by an out-of-state stallion that resided in Kentucky during the year of conception for 180 consecutive days or by a stallion that stood in Kentucky for that breeding season. The resulting foals will be eligible for nomination to the KYSS. In addition to the change in eligibility, the funding has increased largely due to the pari-mutuel tax on historical horse racing, which is now offered at The Red Mile.

2017 Two-Year-Old KYSS Purse Structure

- All purses guaranteed
- Three legs—$30,000 per race
- Final—$250,000

The Advisory Panel also approved funding of up to $250,000 to the Kentucky County Fair Circuit to be used for purses at the seven county fairs and the finals which take place in late July at The Red Mile. Two year olds racing in the fairs must meet the same Kentucky-bred requirements as the KYSS.

Kentucky County Fairs Purse Structure

- $5,000 per fair race, regardless if it splits and a $15,000 final for each two-year-old division. (KHRC)

Toscano Has 7 Chances To Win NYSS Championship

New York Sires Stakes (NYSS) championship night is set for Saturday at Yonkers Raceway and trainer Linda Toscano has seven chances to win. So who is her best chance for a victory?

“The two pacing fillies (Robin J and Planet Rock) are good and they’ve been good all year long,” shared Toscano.

If not for a change in the NYSS conditions that takes effect with this year’s freshman class, Toscano would have had three finalists in the 2-year-old filly pace (Race 1). World Apart earned 85 points in NYSS competition to rank eighth in the point standings, but because of the new rule, Toscano could only have two entries and Planet Rock and Robin J—both owned solely by Ken Jacobs—were first and second, respectively, in the point standings.

“My filly doesn’t get to start and then the consolation doesn’t fill so she doesn’t have that race either,” lamented Toscano.

On the other hand, Toscano’s NYSS finalists—in five of the eight divisions—had luck at the draw. All but two of her seven horses will start from posts 1, 2 or 3.

“All of them drew well except for the one I own!” she quipped, referencing the 2-year-old filly trotter Amber Ella, who will start from post eight in the 2-year-old filly trot.

Toscano said Amber Ella, a winner of four of five career starts, “likes to race from the back, but Barn Bella (post 3) is really good, so we’re really handicapped.”

In addition to having two starters in the 2-year-old filly pace, Toscano also has a pair in the 3-year-old colt pace, Bottom Deals and Missile J. They start from posts 1 and 3, respectively.

Bottom Deals goes into the NYSS championship after winning a final sires stakes leg in a lifetime best 1:49.2 on Sept. 5 at Vernon Downs.

Missile J appeared to be a top horse in the division when he won the Art Rooney Memorial Pace at Yonkers earlier this summer and a NYSS leg there on July 11, but then he tailed off, finishing sixth in two NYSS legs and seventh in the Empire Breeders Classic final.

“He bled, so we gave him some time,” Toscano said of the three-week break from racing she gave the horse. “Last week was his first start on Lasix and he was much better.”

Toscano’s other finalists are the 3-year-old filly pacer Soft Idea and the 3-year-old trotting colt Sir Royson.

“She’s been good and if her trip goes the right way, she could win. She’s beaten all of those fillies,” said Toscano of Soft Idea.

As for Sir Royson, Toscano considers him her longest shot. Although starting from post 3, he’ll be competing against Yonkers Trot runner-up Smalltownthrowdown and the fast winners The Royal Harry and Dayson.

“He’ll need miracles,” she said candidly.—By Kathy Parker
